

Examples.python

This example tests the generation and use of a Python-based AI service as part of a service chain within a platform application.

Coordinated by a Broker instance the Sender service emits data which is processed by the Python AI service and received by the Receiver service which communicates the processed data to the platform Console.